

The house that handmade greeting cards built: Fundraiser November 10

November 1, 2012

On November 10, Santa Fe Habitat for Humanity will hold a handmade greeting card class, and all the proceeds will go toward the organization's work.

For $25, you can participate in a three-hour class on a Saturday morning and create five cards that will feature your own special touches. You'll learn basic card-making techniques, including stamping, burnishing, coloring, designing, layering, and pop-up creation.

If you've ever wished to learn how to make greeting cards, and wanted a fun and interactive environment in which to try it, this is your opportunity.
